

Balance

Balance in the Immune System, immunomodulation, is essential for defending our body from insults to maintain good health.

Insults such as an injury or our exposure to toxins can put our immune system out of balance – sometimes on a daily basis. These insults trigger a cytokine response that sets off an alarm for rapid inflammation to initiate the healing process. When this alarm is excessive, acute inflammation can become serious and even life threatening.

If the alarm fails to turn off due to an imbalanced immune system, chronic inflammation may increase the likelihood of health problems. Scientists believe every major disease has a connection to chronic inflammation, even mental illness and premature aging could be traced wholly or in part to chronic inflammation where the immune system is out of balance.

BiAloe® provides nutritional support that helps the body bring balance to the immune system function.
